VERIFIED PETITION FOR WRIT OF PROHIBITION

Christopher Hanson, Petitioner/Husband, attorney on his own behalf, pursuant to Article V, Section 4(b)(3) of the Florida Constitution and Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.100, petitions this Court for a Writ of Prohibition directed to Respondents, THE HONORABLE MATTHEW FELIX, in his official capacity as Circuit Judge of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit; and THE THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT OF FLORIDA, prohibiting the Respondent Judge and the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit from exercising further jurisdiction over the Petitioner in the underlying family law matter, and directing a transfer of venue to a neutral circuit. This case involves facts and arguments closely related to those in case 2D2025-1936 (Appeal of Venue Transfer Denial). The facts and arguments from that case are reasserted here, with the briefs in the appendix referenced herein.

I. BASIS FOR JURISDICTION

1. This Court has original jurisdiction to issue writs of prohibition under Article V, Section 4(b)(3) of the Florida Constitution and Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.030(b)(3). Prohibition is the proper remedy to prevent a lower court from proceeding where a judge has wrongfully denied a legally sufficient motion for disqualification or is acting in excess of jurisdiction by presiding despite a mandatory disqualification.

   Bundy v. Rudd, 366 So. 2d 440, 442 (Fla. 1978), (App., p. 161, ¶ 2).

2. Jurisdiction is further established because the Petitioner faces material injury that cannot be remedied on post-judgment appeal. Specifically, the trial court has excused the Respondent/Wife from producing for or even allowing Husband to pursue any discovery whatsoever, despite admitted non-disclosure in the parties' separation agreement (App. Tab Z, p. 464 [Petition for Writ of Certiorari]; App. Tab O, p. 241 [Reply Brief]). This allows the concealment of marital assets to persist through trial, rendering any final equitable distribution judgment based on incomplete data fatally flawed. Because the error involves the concealment of the very evidence necessary to prosecute an appeal, the harm is irreparable. Reeves v. Fleetwood Homes of Fla., Inc., 889 So. 2d 812, 822 (Fla. 2004).

3. However, the material injury extends far deeper than financial prejudice; the record demonstrates that the trial court has actively assisted Wife and her counsel in a strategy of weaponizing the children to distract from this core financial discovery issue. After months of a simple delay strategy for about 3 months, Wife—who had previously agreed to 50/50 custody—suddenly filed baseless motions for a Guardian Ad Litem and psychological evaluations solely as leverage to deter discovery. (App. Tab N, p. 199 [Initial Brief detailing retaliation]; App. Tab Y, p. 959 [Motion to Strike Wife's Baseless Motions]).
4. Consequently, Judge Felix is now in a position where he controls the welfare of the children while simultaneously serving as a named Defendant in Husband's active Mandamus litigation regarding these very proceedings (App. Tab B, p. 3 [Mandamus Petition naming Judge Felix]; App. Tab F, p. 140). Putting the Husband/Petitioner in a position where the safety and custody of his children are decided by a Judge who is his active adversary—and who already postponed resolution of the discovery issue as the children are used as pawns. Williams v. Pennsylvania, 579 U.S. 1 (2016).

II. STATEMENT OF THE FACTS

A. The Underlying Dispute and Initial Judicial Misconduct

5. Petitioner Christopher Hanson ("Husband") is the Respondent in a dissolution of marriage action (Case No. 24-DR-001150).
6. From the outset, the proceedings were characterized by severe irregularities where the previous presiding judge, Judge Kelly Ayers, protected opposing counsel, Scott Davis, from accountability for ethical violations regarding the concealment of financial assets (App, p. 136).
7. Judge Ayers proceeded to advance Davis's and Wife's efforts to obstruct Husband's access to the core financial discovery, the core issue in the case, including excusing Wife's compliance with mandatory disclosures. Petitioner/Husband, incorporates and reasserts the arguments made in the Petition for Writ of Certiorari still pending before this Court. (App., p. 241).
8. This bias (in front of Judge Ayers) culminated in a hearing where Judge Ayers rolled her eyes at Husband, denied doing so, offered to check the courtroom video to prove it, and then subsequently refused to produce that video when formally requested (App., p. 163, specifically on the eye-rolling incident at ¶¶ 77–80).

9. Judge Ayers was eventually disqualified, but the efforts to protect the circuit continued as Judge Matthew Felix denied venue transfer despite the conflicts and extreme facts. (App., p. 188, "Order Denying Respondent's Motion to Transfer Venue")

10. The bias and obstruction continue, expanding to a new layer of misconduct and concealment (of evidence of previous attorney and judicial misconduct) involving the public records case where the 6th Circuit, still operating under the 13th Circuit based on the Chief Justice's (Florida Supreme Court) order in case number 25-CA-010255 (App., p. 90, "Transcript of Hearing Before Judge Evan G. Frayman").

B. The Mandamus Action and Structural Conflicts

11. Due to the Circuit's refusal to produce the video evidence and other records confirming judicial misconduct, Petitioner filed a Petition for Writ of Mandamus and Declaratory Relief (Case No. 25-CA-10255).

12. Crucially, the Defendants in this active lawsuit include:

The Thirteenth Judicial Circuit Court (the entity).

Chief Judge Christopher C. Sabella.

Judge Matthew Felix (the Respondent, current presiding judge in the family law case, and Defendant in the Mandamus action). (Appendix, p. 140, p. 93).

13. In the Mandamus action, Judge Evan Frayman acted as 'supplemental defense counsel' by raising and ruling on unpled defenses (App., p. 130, "Verified Motion to Vacate... and Disqualification of Judge Frayman" [specifically ¶ 29 alleging the Judge raised defenses not pleaded by Defendants]), giving the 13th Circuit a complete do-over on its responsive pleading (App., p. 130, [specifically ¶ 24-26 on the 'do-over']), all while silencing Husband from airing the extent of the unrefuted judicial misconduct in the case (App., p. 110, "Transcript of Hearing Before Judge Evan G. Frayman" [Court stating: 'No, Mr. Hanson, I've muted you...']).

14. Judge Frayman refused to offer any explanation for his intentional and unlawful delays, making his intent to shield the circuit from accountability quite clear (App., p. 126, "Verified Motion to Vacate..." [specifically ¶ 15])."

15. The litigation related to Husband's mandamus action includes direct and unrefuted allegations against the 13th Circuit regarding intentional concealment of public records and dirty tactics including document dumping and bait and switch (App., p. 3, "Notice of Related Cases and Motion to Disqualify All 13th Circuit Court Judges" [specifically on document dumping and concealment at

¶¶ 1-4]; see also App., p. 126, "Verified Motion to Vacate... " [on Bait and Switch at ¶ 34]).

16. The proceedings in the underlying family law case at issue here will have a significant impact on the results and consequences of the pending mandamus action (App., p. 3, "Notice of Related Cases and Motion to Disqualify All 13th Circuit Court Judges" [noting the cases involve interconnected allegations and shared evidence at p. 4]).

17. Judge Felix's actions not only ignore Husband's constitutional rights, they keep him in an untenable position, serving as Judge and defendant in inextricably linked cases (App., p. 83, "Respondent's Motion to Vacate, For Rehearing... and For Entry of Order Granting Disqualification" [specifically ¶¶ 6, 17-18]).

C. The "Trap" of Venue and Refusal to Recuse

18. On June 24, 2025, Judge Felix denied Petitioner's Motion to Transfer Venue to Pasco County (App., p. 188, "Order Denying Respondent's Motion to Transfer Venue").

19. Despite verified evidence of systemic corruption, Judge Felix ruled that the technical venue statute (§ 47.011) superseded the "interest of justice" (§ 47.122), effectively trapping the Petitioner in a venue where he is actively suing the presiding judges (App., p. 189, "Order Denying Respondent's Motion to Transfer Venue"; App., p. 230, "Initial Brief of Appellant (Venue Appeal)"),."

20. This continued the long pattern of ongoing violations of Petitioner/Husband's constitutional rights in the 13th Circuit going back to the Court baselessly stripping Petitioner/Husband of his attorney on a single day's notice on December 13, 2024, despite his objection and known unavailability (App., p. 136, "Husband/Respondent's Verified Motion to Disqualify Judge Ayers").
21. Since then, the proceedings have been plagued by systemic delays and obstruction, forcing Petitioner to litigate a venue appeal to escape the Circuit's bias (App., p. 199, "Initial Brief of Appellant") and a collateral mandamus action to expose the Circuit's intentional concealment of public records (App., p. 3, "Notice of Related Cases and Motion to Disqualify All 13th Circuit Court Judges").
22. Petitioner/Husband appealed Judge Felix's denial of venue transfer on July 21, 2025, and incorporates and reasserts all pleadings and arguments from that related appeal (including) in this Petition for Writ of Prohibition, specifically regarding the 'jurisdictional trap' created by the circuit's systemic bias (App., p. 275, "Husband Motion to Stay" [confirming appeal date]; App., p. 199, "Initial Brief of Appellant")."
23. On December 19, 2025, Petitioner filed a "Motion to Disqualify All 13th Circuit Court Judges," citing this structural conflict and due process violations (App., p. 3, "Notice of Related Cases and Motion to Disqualify All 13th Circuit Court Judges"; see also App., p. 19 [alleging institutional conflicts and bias preventing fair adjudication]).

24. On January 8, 2026, Judge Felix denied the motion. Relying solely on Fla. R. Gen. Prac. & Jud. Admin. 2.330(i), Judge Felix ruled that as a successor judge, he "finds that he can be fair and impartial," ignoring his status as a named Defendant in Petitioner's active lawsuit (App. Tab A, p. 1).

25. In denying the motion, the Order conspicuously fails to address—or even mention—the dispositive ground for disqualification: that Judge Felix is a named Defendant in Petitioner's active lawsuit.

26. Instead, the Court relied exclusively on the "successor judge" provision of Fla. R. Gen. Prac. & Jud. Admin. 2.330(i), stating that a successor judge "cannot be disqualified... unless the successor judge rules that he or she is in fact not fair or impartial" (App., p. 2, "Order Denying Respondent's Notice...").

27. By invoking this rule to declare "'the undersigned successor judge finds that he can be fair and impartial," Judge Felix effectively ruled that he may preside over a litigant who is actively suing him, solely based on his subjective belief in his own fairness, ignoring the objective structural conflict. (App., p. 2)

28. Husband proceeded to file a motion to vacate and for rehearing arguing that the Court failed to address the separate structural conflict and due process violation created by Judge Felix presiding over a case while simultaneously being sued by the Husband/Petitioner in closely related litigation (App., p. 83, "Respondent's Motion to Vacate, For Rehearing... and For Entry of Order Granting Disqualification").

29. Petitioner asserted that Rule 2.330(i) cannot override the constitutional requirement of an impartial tribunal where the judge has a personal interest or adversarial relationship with a party, citing Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., 556 U.S. 868 (2009) (App., p. 86, "Respondent's Motion to Vacate...").

30. While Petitioner attempted to address this conflict, the systemic protectionism intensified in the related Mandamus action (Case No. 25-CA-10255), where Judge Evan Frayman, presiding over the suit naming Judge Felix as a Defendant, acted as "supplemental defense counsel" by raising unpled defenses to shield the Circuit from accountability (App., p. 130, "Verified Motion to Vacate... and Disqualification of Judge Frayman").

31. During the January 13, 2026 hearing, Judge Frayman actively silenced Petitioner from making a record of this misconduct, stating "No, Mr. Hanson, I've muted you" (App., p. 110, Transcript of Hearing Before Judge Evan G. Frayman).

32. This relentless effort to suppress evidence of the 13th Circuit's misconduct and liability directly impacts the underlying family law case, as Judge Felix remains in the constitutionally intolerable position of serving as both judge and adversary to the Petitioner (App., p. 86, "Respondent's Motion to Vacate...")."

D. Confirmation of Forum Bias and Wife's Reliance on it: The "Emergency" Motion to Lift Stay and Refusal of a Neutral Venue

33. More evidence that Respondent/Wife is enjoying the Thirteenth Circuit's systemic protectionism—rather than the law—is her desperate attempt to lift the appellate stay to return the case to the lower tribunal, while simultaneously refusing to transfer the case to her own county of residence.

34. On August 1, 2025, the trial court granted a stay of proceedings pending the outcome of the appeal on venue, cancelling the matters scheduled for August 8, 2025. (App., p. 278).

35. Despite the stay, the Wife filed an "Emergency Motion for the Second District Court of Appeal to Lift the Stay," claiming that the Husband is "unwell" and that the stay endangers the children by preventing the appointment of a Guardian Ad Litem and psychological evaluations. (App., p. 313-324; specifically at 322).

36. The record reveals this "emergency" to be a litigation tactic designed to bypass the stay.

37. Husband explicitly offered to voluntarily attend the psychological and vocational evaluations to appease any concerns.

38. On September 26, 2025, Husband wrote to opposing counsel: "I also want to remind you that I've offered to attend the psychological and voc evals if that would appease your concerns..."(App., p. 361).

39. Furthermore, Husband noted that the parties had just attended parent-teacher conferences where the Wife raised no concerns about the children, directly contradicting the "emergency" narrative presented to the Court. (App. at 365).

40. Most telling is the Wife's refusal to stipulate to a transfer of venue to Pasco County, despite admitting in her own motion that "Appellee [Wife] currently resides in Pasco County, Florida." (App. at 314).

41. As noted in the Husband's correspondence to opposing counsel, the Wife is fighting to keep the case in a less convenient venue: "And finally, we're talking about moving to a venue more convenient for your client! That's really something you're going to keep fighting?! That's really telling on not only the corrupt advantage you've enjoyed in the 13th Circuit, but also how incredibly open and obvious you're willing to make it." (App. at 361).

42. This insistence on litigating in a specific, less convenient forum, combined with the manufacturing of "emergencies" that the Husband has already offered to resolve voluntarily, provides objective evidence that the opposing party is banking on the "home court advantage" of the 13th Circuit's bias.

43. This necessitates the Writ of Prohibition to break this stalemate and move the case to a neutral forum. There's obviously compelling grounds for disqualification in addition to the obvious structural conflict, making these facts even more concerning for the cases' impact on public confidence in the judiciary.

III. NATURE OF RELIEF SOUGHT

44. Petitioner seeks a Writ of Prohibition disqualifying Judge Matthew Felix and all judges of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit from presiding over Case No. 24-DR-001150 and directing a transfer of venue to a neutral circuit pursuant to Fla. Stat. § 47.122.

IV. ARGUMENT

A. CONSTITUTIONAL DUE PROCESS OVERRIDES RULE 2.330(i)

45. Judge Felix denied disqualification by invoking Rule 2.330(i), which limits "successive" motions against a successor judge unless the judge admits unfairness.

46. However, it's fundamental that a procedural rule and state venue statutes cannot abrogate the Petitioner's fundamental Due Process right to an impartial tribunal. Marbury v. Madison, 5 U.S. (1 Cranch) 137, 177 (1803).

47. Florida case law recognizes this Federal standard; "It is a well-established principle of law that where a statute [or rule] and the Constitution conflict, the Constitution must prevail. Holley v. Adams, 238 So. 2d 401, 405 (Fla. 1970).

48. Yet, the 13th Circuit Court continues to openly ignore this principle despite the long and consistent pattern of violating Husband's due process rights. (App., p. 136, "Husband/Respondent's Verified Motion to Disqualify Judge Ayers" [detailing hearing set on single day's notice, stripping counsel at ¶ 14]; App., p. 110), and ignoring his many requests for relief regarding discovery obstruction and ethical violations (App., p. 177, p. 3).

49. Husband has pursued a singular issue since litigation commenced with Wife's warning shot of 16 pages of interrogatories (seeking tedious but completely unnecessary because Wife had all of the relevant information) for Husband to complete, prior to either party being represented. (App., p. 136, 199).

50. From his initial pleading just after receiving the interrogatories, Husband consistently pleaded with the Court for efficiency with the simple discovery issue to avoid any prolonged or harmful impact on the children (App., p. 143, "Husband/Respondent's Verified Motion to Disqualify Judge Ayers" [quoting transcript at ¶ 17: 'It's killing me to watch what it's doing to them... I don't understand all of the delay tactics']; App., p. 370).

51. Husband hired 2 law firms, back to back, with attorneys at both advising that his discovery request was a “routine discovery issue” (App., p. 137, "Husband/Respondent’s Verified Motion to Disqualify Judge Ayers" [¶ 7 identifying firms]; App., p. 372, "Husband Formal Objection..." [¶ 9 confirming firms 'initially assured that the discovery issues were straightforward, reasonable, and resolvable']).”

52. Each of those attorneys went from “this is a routine discovery issue” before conferences with Wife’s attorney, Davis, and then with no change in the facts or law, both of Husband’s attorneys suddenly and without explanation, insisted the “discovery (that was “routine” before) would be nearly impossible” to complete. Id.

53. Husband waived any attorney client privilege before the hearing on his attorney's (Hodz) motion to withdrawal, and yet the Court fast-tracked Hodz's withdrawal over Husband's objection, with no investigation into the true circumstances leading to her request to withdraw (App., p. 136, "Husband/Respondent's Verified Motion to Disqualify Judge Ayers" [¶ 33(F) noting Husband waived privilege but Court failed to make findings; ¶ 11 noting rushed hearing over objection]).

54. The Court has obstructed and ignored that request in every way conceivable including allowing Wife to avoid compliance with mandatory disclosures, even while Husband provided 3 years of financials to Wife and responded to 16 pages of interrogatories (App., p. 163, "Husband's Motion to Transfer Venue..." [¶¶ 24–27 noting Judge refused to require compliance]; App., p. 136, p. 241).

55. The Court even ignored Mr. Davis's long list of intentional discovery violations all designed to obstruct access to these financial records in excusing Wife's failure to comply with mandatory disclosures.

56. We have a long and consistent pattern of extreme bias from the 13th Circuit specifically against Husband, often with no good faith basis under the law for the Courts' actions.

57. The U.S. Supreme Court held in Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., 556 U.S. 868 (2009), that disqualification is constitutionally required when the "probability of actual bias... is too high to be constitutionally tolerable." (Cited in App. Tab C, p. 86, ¶ 16).

58. Here, Judge Felix is a named Defendant in active litigation (Case No. 25-CA-10255) filed by Husband/Petitioner (App., p. 140). It is legally impossible for a judge to possess the "cold neutrality of an impartial judge" when he is actively litigating against the party appearing before him. This creates a "structural conflict" that Rule 2.330(i) was never intended to shield (App., p. 86, ¶ 18). Crosby v. State, 97 So. 2d 181, 185 (Fla. 1957).

Diagram of Direct Conflict of Interest:

59. This creates a structural error under Williams v. Pennsylvania, 579 U.S. 1 (2016), where the U.S. Supreme Court held that an unconstitutional failure to recuse is not subject to harmless error review and requires automatic reversal.

60. Because the objective risk of bias here—where the judge is a named defendant in Husband/Petitioner's active suit—violates due process, disqualification is mandatory to preserve the integrity of the judicial process, regardless of any actual prejudice or the judge's subjective view of his own fairness (App., p. 86).

B. SYSTEMIC PROTECTIONISM AND DIRECT CONFLICTS OF INTEREST CONFIRM THE WELL-FOUNDED FEAR NECESSITATING DISQUALIFICATION

61. The structural conflict described above is actively prejudicing Petitioner's rights in real-time as he's forced to attend a status conference in front of Judge Felix on February 3, 2026, as Judge Frayman's delays prevent action in the public records litigation.

62. While the complaints of a lawyer undergoing a divorce are easily dismissed as the bitterness of a difficult litigant, the severity of the bias here is objective and undeniable: the Petitioner was forced to sue the presiding judge and the Circuit itself to expose a systemic campaign of concealment involving 'document dumping' and 'bait and switch' tactics, proving that the courthouse has abandoned neutrality to protect its own. (App., p. 32 [Mandamus Petition naming Judges]; App., p. 12 [Intentionally Deceitful Conduct from 13th Circuit]; App., p. 129).

63. As Husband/Petitioner asserted his constitutional right to transparency, in efforts to protect his constitutional right to due process, Judge Frayman, who had no experience with Husband/Petitioner, showed overt bias and caused intentional and unnecessary delays, further violating Husband/Petitioner's due process, and causing further damage to this family (App., p. 130, "Verified Motion to Vacate... and Disqualification of Judge Frayman" [¶ 29 detailing Judge raising unpled defenses to protect the Circuit]; App., p. 110, "Transcript of Hearing Before Judge Evan G. Frayman" [Court stating: 'No, Mr. Hanson, I've muted you' when Petitioner attempted to make a record]; App., p. 126, "Verified Motion to Vacate..." [¶ 15 noting Judge refused to offer explanation for 'intentional and unlawful delays' and ¶¶ 24–26 regarding the 'do-over' granted to Defendants])

64. When Petitioner attempted to make a record regarding the facts necessitating the Writ, Judge Frayman became openly hostile, stating, "No, you're going to listen to me or I'm going to mute you" (App., p. 107 [Transcript p. 17, lines 22–23]). When Petitioner persisted in his due process right to be heard, the Court carried out the threat: "No, Mr. Hanson, I've muted you" (App. Tab D, p. 110 [Transcript p. 20, line 21]).

65. This suppression of an attorney representing himself and his children in good faith and clean hands, while the judge actively assists the Defendants (his own colleagues), validates the Petitioner's fear that no judge within this "clubhouse" can sit in judgment of a case involving their own systemic transparency failures.

66. This structural circularity creates an insurmountable Moral Hazard. Because the 13th Circuit judges effectively insulate one another from accountability—as demonstrated by Judge Frayman shielding Judge Felix by silencing the record—they bear no cost for their bias. When a court system serves as its own judge, jury, and defense counsel against allegations of its own misconduct, the "check and balance" of the judicial system is destroyed, leaving the Petitioner with no recourse but this Court.

C. THE "UNREFUTED FACTS" DEMONSTRATE A PATTERN OF DISPARATE TREATMENT AND IRREPARABLE HARM

67. The true severity of the due process violations requires an analysis of "good faith" versus "obstruction." The record demonstrates a startling disparity in how the 13th Circuit applies the law to the Husband versus the Wife and her counsel.

68. To avoid repetitive recitation of the extensive docket, the following table illustrates the Systemic Double Standard that further illustrates Petitioner's well-founded fear of bias:

ISSUE	TREATMENT OF HUSBAND (PETITIONER)	TREATMENT OF WIFE/COUNSEL (DAVIS)
Financial Disclosure	Complied with 3 years of records; produced 16 pages of interrogatory answers (App. Tab F, p. 136, ¶ 47; App. Tab N, p. 199).	Refused mandatory disclosure for 7 months; filed defective certificates; admitted non-disclosure in PMA (App. Tab O, p. 241 [Petition for Writ of Certiorari]; App. Tab C, p. 83).
Professional Conduct	Scrutinized for "tone" in emails; Court threatened sanctions for non-existent "inappropriate" emails (App. Tab F, p. 136, ¶ 17).	Zero consequences for emailing a veiled threat to bring "a bat" to a dispute; Court ignored Husband's safety concerns (App. Tab N, p. 222 [Initial Brief citing Record]).
Court Orders	Admonished to strictly follow procedures; denied hearing on critical	Excused from drafting "Summary of Testimony" ordered by the Court simply because he refused to do it (App. Tab Y, p. 369; App. Tab N, p. 226).

	discovery motions (App. Tab F, p. 136, ¶ 14).
Venue Preference	Trapped in a venue (Hillsborough) where he is suing the judges. (App. Tab L, p. 188).	Allowed to keep case in Hillsborough despite residing in Pasco County, choosing "corruption over convenience" (App. Tab T, p. 314, ¶ 3 [Wife admitting Pasco residence]).

D. THE "INTEREST OF JUSTICE" DEMANDS TRANSFER

69. Under Fla. Stat. § 47.122, venue transfer is mandated when the "interest of justice" requires it. The record below establishes a cumulative pattern of unchecked misconduct and institutional protectionism that renders the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit an improper forum.

Objective Evidence of Concealment: The opposing party refused to void a Post-Marital Agreement, even though doing so would net her over $100,000 if her financial disclosures were truthful. This nonsensical litigation strategy provides objective proof of bad faith and asset concealment that the trial court refuses to address (App. Tab C, p. 83; App. Tab O, p. 241)

• Breakdown of Administrative Oversight: The Circuit Court administratively refused to produce video evidence of the hearing where judicial bias (eye-rolling) occurred and charged exorbitant fees for public records, effectively engaging in concealment to protect a sitting judge (App. Tab B, p. 58 [Melendi Letters])

• Disparate Treatment of Counsel: The tribunal has lost its neutrality by allowing opposing counsel to act with impunity—including making written threats of violence involving weapons ("a bat")—while simultaneously silencing and muting the Petitioner for attempting to make a record (App. Tab N, p. 222; App. Tab D, p. 110). • Failure of External Safeguards: The JQC dismissed a formal complaint regarding judicial conduct without reviewing readily available video evidence, confirming that the internal oversight mechanisms have failed and leaving the Petitioner with no recourse but transfer to a neutral circuit (App. Tab B, p. 3).

70. This is not a grievance about adverse rulings; it is a documented systemic failure. The "interest of justice" cannot be served in a venue where the Petitioner is forced to sue the presiding judge to obtain basic records, and where the administration actively conceals evidence to protect its own.

V. CONCLUSION

71. The undisputed record establishes that Judge Matthew Felix and the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit have lost the appearance of impartiality required by the Florida Constitution. The Petitioner is currently trapped in a "Jurisdictional Triangle" where he is forced to litigate the custody and welfare of his children before a Judge who is a named Defendant in Petitioner’s active lawsuit regarding the concealment of judicial records (App. Tab B, p. 93; App. Tab F, p. 140).

72. This is not merely a procedural error; it is a structural defect under Williams v. Pennsylvania, 579 U.S. 1 (2016). Because Judge Felix and the Petitioner are active adversaries in litigation (involving the same record and subject matter), the Judge is legally disqualified from presiding. Under Florida law, any judgment or order entered by Judge Felix while this conflict exists is void ab initio. Parker v. State, 873 So. 2d 270, 272 (Fla. 2004)

73. To force the Petitioner to endure a sham trial, only to have the resulting judgment inevitably vacated as a legal nullity, constitutes irreparable harm that wastes judicial resources and inflicts continued emotional damage on the family.

74. Wife resides in Pasco County. The "Interest of Justice" under Fla. Stat. § 47.122 and the constitutional guarantee of due process require that this matter be transferred to a jurisdiction free from the taint of this systemic "clubhouse" conflict. This Court has the clear authority and the constitutional duty to prohibit the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit from exercising jurisdiction it has forfeited through its own bias.

WHEREFORE, Petitioner respectfully requests this Court issue a Writ of Prohibition disqualifying Judge Matthew Felix and all judges of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit from presiding over Case No. 24-DR-001150, and remanding with instructions to transfer venue to the Sixth Judicial Circuit in Pasco County, or another neutral venue.

Respectfully submitted on February 2, 2026,

/s/Christopher Hanson
