Case No.: 24-DR-1150

and

Division: D

CHRISTOPHER HANSON, Husband,

HUSBAND/HUSBAND'S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR IMMEDIATE RULING ON CHASE SUBPOENAS AND/OR RESPONSES TO HUSBAND'S MOTIONS TO COMPEL 1, 2, AND 3, OR IN THE ALTERNATIVE, MOTIONS FOR IN CAMERA INSPECTIONS OF RESPONSES TO ALL REQUESTS TO PRODUCE AND CHASE RECORDS.

The Husband, CHRISTOPHER HANSON, by and through his undersigned counsel and pursuant to Fla. Fam. L. R. P. 12.100, files this Motion, and, in support thereof, states as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION/SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT:

1. The Husband seeks immediate relief due to the Wife's escalating use of the children as leverage for obstruction, intimidation, and attempts to initiate conflict/distractions and her attorney's increasingly dishonest and personal attacks on Husband; all in pursuit of their long term litigation strategy in this matter – delay, harass, burden, inflame, and ultimately concealment of marital assets.
2. Husband requests the Court's understanding to the extent the motion contains strong language and accusations, and begs the Court's consideration of how the events described herein would affect an attorney/Husband doing his best to get his family through this difficult time.

3. Florida Family Law Rule of Procedure 12.605 authorizes emergency relief when a party's conduct threatens immediate and irreparable harm, such as to a child's emotional stability or a litigant's due process rights. Here, Wife's escalating actions—unilaterally disrupting the longstanding custody agreement to take Husband's morning to attend kindergarten graduation (Text Message, May 9, 2025, Page 3), obstructing Husband and children's church service participation during which they were accepted as new members (Text Message, June 8, 2025, Page 26), and reneging on a vacation agreement (Email, June 10, 2025)—coupled with Mr. Davis's ongoing discovery obstruction (Docket 206, Page 2; Docket 149, Page 4) and personal attacks (Docket 206, 207), constitute immediate harm by undermining the children's well-being and Husband's right to transparency under Casto v. Casto, 508 So.2d 330 (Fla. 1987), justifying an emergency ruling to compel discovery and protect the family.
4. Additionally, and alternatively, these escalations combined with the long history of discovery violations aimed precisely at preventing Husband access to even reciprocal discovery justify Court action given the violations of due process.
5. The due process violations will meet the permanent harm concerns on August 8, 2025 if the Court forces Husband to argue the motions without the core discovery needed for his primary argument – Wife's motions are baseless, retaliatory, and designed to prevent Husband from getting the records he needs to argue against Wife's motions.

6. The motion is regrettably long given multiple layers of Wife's and Mr. Davis's misconduct (which has continued non-stop since his involvement) with solid, unrefuted evidence documenting the entire story. Far more evidence of Wife's Mr. Davis's and Judge Ayers' inappropriate and collusive actions taken to the organized detriment of Husband are readily apparent through reviewing the facts and argument from prior filings, including Docket #'s (Docket #22, 72, 84, 87, 91, 92, 98, 105, 109, 110, 118, 128, 130, 134, 145, 162, 163, 172, 183, 192, and 198).
7. Wife's admission that she provided no disclosures at the time of entering the post-marital agreement, makes the analysis on discovery very straightforward – Husband is (and always was, going back to May of 2024) entitled to investigate Wife's assets in assessing the fairness of the PMA, especially when Wife requested and received more financial information from Husband. Casto v. Casto, 508 So. 2d 330, 333 (Fla. 1987).
8. Husband is seeking transparency following a long history of Wife's deceit and concealment of marital assets even as the parties continued to actively worked on the marriage going back to 2020, now continuing on for well over a year after initiating litigation on this one simple issue. All of Husband's filings and comments in hearings are consistent with that one singular objective – transparency in the determination of marital assets.
9. The Record demonstrates Wife, Mr. Davis and Judge Ayers actively worked together against Husband's interests, often making baseless conclusory allegations to justify their baseless and unlawful actions. (Docket #183). Yet at the April 22, 2025 hearing, they were unable to cite even one inappropriate email from Husband, while ignoring overwhelming evidence of misconduct from Wife and Mr. Davis. (Docket #192 p. 4, lines 5-10; p. 11, lines 15-20; p. 14, lines 15-20; p. 16, lines 10-15; p. 17, lines 10-15; p. 34, lines 20-25; p. 35, lines 1-5; p. 37, lines 10-15; p. 41, lines 20-25; p. 42, lines 1-5; p. 43, lines 5-10; p. 54, lines 15-20).

10. The concerns over permanent damage to the children, beyond already smashing unnecessary conflict into a full year of their childhood, is becoming greater and greater as the single core issue languishes in litigation. (Docket 192, Page 7, lines 10-20, Page 191, lines 10-20, 15-25; Page 192, lines 1-5).

11. Despite all of the facts and authority, down to core principles of Florida family law that entitle and even require Husband's access to at least reciprocal discovery, Judge Ayers actively worked against a fair result in this matter.

12. There is no explanation for Wife's litigation objectives which are all ethical violations in their own right – delay, harass, burden, and conceal, beyond the obvious - an unwavering intent to obstruct discovery into marital assets.

13. Husband pleads with this Court and Judge Felix for immediate relief and understanding on how encountering such consistent bad faith litigation tactics, ignored or even supported by the presiding Judge, are harming Husband's children, necessitating emergent relief.

II. Wife and Mr. Davis's longstanding pattern of and Recent Escalations in Weaponizing the children, Personal attacks, and stoking unnecessary conflict and animosity.

14. Since Judge Ayers was disqualified, the longstanding pattern of Wife's and Mr.

Davis's conduct designed to delay, distract, harass, and conceal has increased.

(Docket #206-208).

15. The evidence supporting Husband's position, that all of Wife's actions in this matter stem from a motive to conceal assets, extends back far beyond her initial non-disclosure during PMA negotiations. (Docket #'s 22, 146).

16. Wife coerced Husband into signing the PMA, insisting she needed separation proceeds to buy a home (Docket #146, ¶¶39-41; Docket #122, p. 4). This coercion, paired with her admitted lack of disclosure (Docket #146, ¶42), renders the PMA suspect and amplifies the relevance of Husband's discovery requests and Wife's dilatory and retaliatory litigation.

17. The entire history of Wife's delay, harass, burden, and conceal efforts is relevant to this motion including Docket #'s 22, 72, 84, 87, 91, 92, 98, 105, 109, 110, 118, 128, 130, 134, 145, 162, 163, 172, 183, 192, and 198, and Husband respectfully requests the Court's review of these documents.

Wife and Mr. Davis's recent escalations in weaponizing children, personal attacks and other misconduct.

18. Wife's weaponization of the children has increased to the point she is now striving to introduce conflict in new and concerning ways; anything that might distract from the core issue, financial discovery and her intent to conceal marital property.

19. Husband recently reviewed these increasing concerns with Wife and her counsel in email correspondence outlining 3 separate concerns (June 10, 2025 email, Docket #208, p. 9-12):

A) Mother's Day and Kindergarten Graduation Disruption –

Husband initiated a cooperative gesture on May 8, 2025, texting Wife, "Do u want some extra time on Mother's Day?" even though the custody schedule brought the children back to Husband that day. [Text Message, May 8, 2025, Page 21, below]. Husband offered flexibility for Mother's Day (May 11, 2025) while expecting adherence to the longstanding 3/3 custody schedule unless mutually agreed. On May 9, 2025, Husband sought confirmation, texting, "Please respond to me so I can plan on when I'm getting the girls back on Sunday... I hope that you're not planning on unilaterally taking them off the 3/3 schedule" [Text Message, May 9, 2025, Page 21, below].

Wife replied, "I have tickets to a show that starts at 530. I plan on taking them to school on Monday" [Text Message, May 9, 2025, Page 21], revealing she assumed she could keep the children overnight and into Monday, May 12, 2025, without informing Husband. This deviation, only uncovered due to Husband's proactive inquiry, suggests Wife had no intention of discussing her plans. Husband objected, texting, "I don't agree at all. I think it's a serious violation of trust and maybe the last longstanding agreement that we have" [Text Message, May 9, 2025, Page 21].

On May 11, 2025, Husband made multiple offers to retrieve the girls after Wife's 5:30 PM show, texting at 7:08:50 PM, "This confirm whether you're meeting me with the kids this evening or tomorrow morning by 715" as Husband needed to finalize his kindergartner's gift for her teacher before her graduation that morning [Text Message, May 11, 2025, Page 21] and at 9:11:58 PM, "Can I pick the kids up near you early tomorrow morning?? I've been as accommodating as I can" [Text Message, May 11, 2025, Page 22].

Wife rebuffed these efforts, responding, "We are still at show, I can't meet at 715 am, this is first time I've heard of this" and "Um, I'm not comfortable with that" [Text Message, May 11, 2025, Page 21 below], refusing to cooperate or propose alternatives to keep the kids on the agreed upon schedule. Consequently, Wife extended her custody into Monday, taking the girls to the kindergarten graduation, using Mother's day as a pretext to usurp from Husband this milestone during his scheduled time.

Under Florida Statute § 61.13, the court prioritizes the children's best interests, including fostering meaningful bonds with both parents—a duty Wife flouted through this calculated act of alienation, motivated by her intent to enjoy the graduation event, despite it falling during Husband's time. Florida law permits expedited hearings when a parent's actions cause immediate and irreparable harm, and here,

Wife's unilateral deviation and uncooperative stance signal a dangerous escalation in her weaponization of the children. As Husband has argued for over a year, these unnecessary escalations in conflict are part of a strategic move to obstruct his access to financial information by creating problems with the children that draw attention. The only way to stop the damage is to order the very reasonable and obviously proper discovery at the core of the parties' dispute. The Court will either do that or attempt to continue with the corrupt path Judge Ayers facilitated the past several months that's caused so much harm.

B) Church Service Obstruction and Alienation –

Wife's refusal to switch Sundays to allow for the children's attendance at and participation in a church service on Sunday, June 8th at Grace Lutheran Church resulted in unreasonable and unnecessary stress and conflict. The Husband made persistent efforts to ensure the children's participation in a special Pentecost service at Grace Lutheran Church on June 8, 2025, beginning on May 28, 2025, and continuing through the morning of the event.

However, these efforts were met with inadequate responses and resistance from the Wife, creating unnecessary obstacles that nearly altogether prevented the children from attending this significant family and religious occasion. Husband's dedication to cooperation in facilitating the event for the children's benefit and the Wife's pattern of non-cooperation reflect alienation under Florida Statute § 61.13 as detailed in the chain below:

May 28, 2025 - Husband's Message: "We are formally Joining the Lutheran church on 6-8. They are having a little reception with us and 2 other families that are Joining. They take family pies and a couple little things I'd really like to have the kids experience. Can we switch days or just let me have em for a couple hours that Sunday please?." "[Text Message, May 28, 2025, Page 23 below]

May 29, 2025 - Husband's Message: "And please let me know about June 8. They may see if the other families can do another day if you are not w1lhng to cooperate •." "[Text Message, May 29, 2025, Page 23 below]

June 7, 2025 - Husband's Message (4:47:42 PM): "The girls are part of a group that are making these things [picture of a rhythmic gymnastics ribbon was attached to this message] for Pentecost tomorrow morning. The youth director wants them there early to make sure they won't trip over them or step on each other. They're the youngest ones that are doing it." [Text Message, June 7, 2025, Page 26 below]

June 8, 2025 - Husband's Message (7:56:33 AM): "Hey - I asked the kids to send pics of their outfits today. Or if I have enough time, I can bring outfits for them to change into. They do family pictures and want to match at least my tie. Let me know on timing. Please don't be petty and ruin this for the kids." [Text Message, June 7, 2025, Page 26 below]

Husband's messages providing advance notice demonstrate the intent for cooperation and the best interest of the children, focusing on coordination for family pictures and offering practical solutions. He emphasizes the children's experience, urging cooperation. The Wife's reply critiques his tone rather than addressing the logistics fully, providing only partial information (Sunday school ending at 9:30 AM at Creekside) without confirming outfit plans until later although she claims she attempted to send a picture before it ultimately went through later.

Husband's messages consistently urge cooperation to ensure the children's timely participation, highlighting potential embarrassment and disruption if delayed. Wife often fails to respond, and limits cooperation, and even makes unilateral decisions contrary to the parties' longtime understandings. Husband expressed significant concern with the increasing escalation of conflict at that time: "It's everything with you right now. I'm really truly scared. You and your attorney are like cornered animals right now. I have no clue how far you are willing to go with us and I'm afraid for more safety and for the kids." [Text Message, June 8, 2025, Page 26 below]

Wife's unexplained refusal to cooperate with the request to exchange Sundays and insistence on introducing time barriers further exemplify her escalating efforts to alienate the children from their father. Wife's refusal to allow the kids to be picked up at a time that allowed for attendance at the pre-service meeting to go over their participation, resulted in the family getting to church barely in time for the service, missing the meeting with the pastor and youth pastor.

Contrasting Husband's efforts at coordination for this event with Wife's plan to unilaterally alter the longstanding custody schedule (in order to convert Husband's right to take the kids to graduation as described above) illustrates the escalation of attempts to bully Husband and use the children as pawns. Despite advance notice and the Husband's reasonable attempts to coordinate, Wife stonewalled cooperation, souring what should have been a significant family event. Immediate intervention is essential to halt this pattern and protect the children's stability.

C) Vacation Agreement Reneging and Instability –

Husband proposed a week-long summer vacation to Michigan to which Wife initially agreed. On May 31, 2025, she texted, "I'm fine with you having a week vacation and then I also get a week vacation. However, you have to let me know dates, times, travel plans, and addresses where girls are staying" [Text Message, May 31, 2025], signaling her approval contingent on logistical details. Husband planned a trip to occur between July 11-20, 2025, expecting 6-7 nights.

However, in an email on June 10, 2025, Wife imposed new conditions, stating, "I am agreeable to you taking the children out-of-state for 5 days, not 10... you mentioned 6 nights, which I believe covers 5 days then" [Email, June 10, 2025]. Husband responded on June 11, 2025, expressing frustration: "I had a really nice week planned with the kids in Michigan, but it was going to be at least 6 days... You are making things so difficult in such unnecessary and silly ways you take the joy out of it" [Email, June 11, 2025].

Wife refused cooperation, emailing on June 12, 2025, "I am not engaging in any more questions... they do not spend an extended period with you and have no time with me then" [Email, June 12, 2025]. Her restrictive conditions forced Husband to shorten the trip, disrupting his plans and the children's experience, all to which Wife initially agreed.

The decision to change her position on Husband's vacation plans clearly relates to the litigation as instead of responding to the texts with her sudden and unexplained change in position, Wife sent an email and copied her attorney. These tactics, inappropriate and detrimental to the children, unnecessarily escalate conflict with the only motivation being the obvious one – to use the children to distract from the core discovery issue ongoing for more than a year. In the process, Wife has deprived the children out of a special summer vacation up North, based on arbitrary and misleading details, that do nothing beyond create conflict and hurt feelings.

The recent escalation in Mr. Davis's hostility and misconduct just this week provides further compelling evidence for immediate relief.

20. Mr. Davis's conclusions in his insulting and condescending emails from June 25, 2025, lack any reasonable basis, further evidencing his bad-faith intent to mischaracterize Husband's position and obstruct discovery. (Docket 206, 207).

21. In his 6:53 PM email, Mr. Davis claims Husband "can't pay" for health insurance or children's expenses without a court order, yet Husband never stated an inability to pay (Docket #207, p. 1; Docket #206, p. 3).

22. Instead, Husband's focus on discovery and custody issues support that his potential objections to payment are a response to Wife's and Mr. Davis's year-long nightmare of ethical and discovery violations, including their refusal to produce admittedly discoverable legal billing records. Despite an outstanding motion to compel and no objections to the third RTP, Mr. Davis fails to even respond to inquiries on that, demonstrating Wife's comprehensive obstruction to any investigation of marital assets even when Wife admittedly made no financial disclosures in relation to the PMA at issue. (Docket #206, pp. 6-7). Mr. Davis consistently refuses cooperation and good faith, instead focusing on personal insults aimed at Husband and other distraction techniques.

23. Similarly, Mr. Davis's 7:00 PM email claims that Husband has a "lack of desire" to pay expenses is unsupported, as Husband does not express disinterest but rather seeks resolution of the core issue that's spawned all of this awfulness. (Docket #206, pp. 1, 3).

24. These misrepresentations from Mr. Davis, delivered as insults within a seven-minute span just this week, aim to harass and intimidate Husband and divert attention from the core issue of financial transparency. (Docket 206, 207).
25. Especially given the level of animosity, threatening language in his correspondence, and unrefuted complaints about his ethical and discovery violations, Mr. Davis must exercise more self control and remain professional in his handling of the case.
26. Mr. Davis's unsupported conclusions align with Husband's allegation that Wife and her counsel are engaging in bad-faith litigation to conceal marital assets (Docket #206, pp. 3-13).
27. By falsely portraying Husband as financially irresponsible, Mr. Davis seeks to undermine Husband's discovery efforts and custody rights, consistent with the retaliatory tactics described in Wife's October 2, 2024, petition for primary custody and December 13, 2024, motions (Docket #'s 67, 69, 75, 77).
28. This conduct, coupled with Mr. Davis's refusal to address what should be routine matters if the attorneys and parties are subject to any rules: 1) RTP #3, to which there's no objection nor response, 2) deposition scheduling for Wife and Daniel Sorgie, and Chase subpoena objections, violates Florida's transparency mandate under Rule 12.285 and Casto v. Casto, 508 So. 2d 330 (Fla. 1987), necessitating immediate court intervention to compel discovery and impose sanctions.
29. These escalations from Mr. Davis occurring just after Judge Ayers' disqualification, are consistent with the ongoing pattern of misconduct from Wife and Mr. Davis and what Husband has argued since the very beginning – a quick resolution to the financial discovery is critical to the well-being of this family.

30. While there are many more examples and details regarding Wife's weaponization, Mr. Davis's attacks and refusal to cooperate on even basic issues, the clear pattern of increasing weaponization justifies emergent handling of these discovery issues before hearings on the Guardian ad Litem and other retaliatory filings.

Mr. Davis's recent reversal on his agreement that an expedited hearing on the Chase subpoenas is necessary.

31. On March 2, 2025, Mr. Davis filed an objection to Husband's Notices of Production from Non-Parties (Chase Bank), yet explicitly requested an expedited hearing, stating: "Because the Court is very familiar with this particular discovery dispute, the undersigned attorney believes that this issue can be resolved by the Court at the conclusion of a 15-minute hearing" (Docket 149, Page 4, Paragraph 18). Mr. Davis acknowledged the urgency and simplicity of resolving the dispute over financial records critical to equitable distribution and the validity of the Post-Marital Agreement (PMA) (Docket 1, Page 16, Paragraphs 58-61).

32. Unfortunately, Husband is still waiting on a determination despite Casto requiring the Court overrule the objections, and the filing of a motion to void the PMA, and the many discovery violations directed at avoiding this reasonable discovery. (Docket #'s 145, 192, 198)

33. By June 25, 2025, Mr. Davis reversed his agreement on an expedited hearing, refusing Husband's request for coordinating the event he had previously endorsed.

34. Mr. Davis consistently refused to schedule mediation or depositions, stonewalling Husband's efforts to resolve discovery disputes (Docket 206, Page 9).

35. Mr. Davis's inconsistent positions and obstruction warrant sanctions under Rule 1.380 for bad-faith litigation tactics (Docket 206, Page 4; Docket 1, Page 6, Paragraph 28).

36. Failing to grant the relief Husband requests here serves only the corrupt delay and conceal strategy from Wife and Mr. Davis to the great harm of Husband and the children impacted by the unchecked retaliatory litigation filed by Wife; a gross miscarriage of justice.

III. ABSOLUTE RELEVANCE OF AND LACK OF ANY GOOD FAITH OBJECTIONS TO HUSBAND'S DISCOVERY REQUESTS INCLUDING CHASE SUBPOENAS

37. Florida family law prioritizes transparency through broad discovery rules to ensure fair resolutions, especially in disputes over equitable distribution and marital agreements (Casto v. Casto, 508 So. 2d 330, 333 (Fla. 1987); Fla. Fam. L. R. P. 12.280).

38. Under Florida Family Law Rule of Procedure 12.280, a party may obtain discovery regarding any non-privileged matter that is relevant to the litigation or could reasonably lead to admissible evidence.

39. The Husband's discovery requests—targeting Wife's financial assets and income—are directly relevant to the core issues: the equitable distribution of marital property under Florida Statute § 61.075 and the enforceability of the Post-Marital Agreement (PMA) executed on October 8, 2023 (Docket #203).

40. Wife's admitted failure to provide full financial disclosure during PMA negotiations triggers Husband's right to discovery under Casto, which mandates fairness and transparency in marital agreements. (Docket #146, ¶42; Docket #203, pp. 14-17).

41. Even Judge Ayers acknowledged the necessity of discovery before attending a hearing on the pending PMA's validity, calling it "non-sensical" to proceed otherwise (Docket #183, paragraph 12), yet she continued to stall progress on the case by forcing the parties on this non-sensical path. (Docket 183, 192, Page 7, lines 10-20, Page 191, lines 10-20, 15-25; Page 192, lines 1-5).
42. Wife's refusal to reciprocate discovery—despite demanding and receiving extensive financial records from Husband (Docket #122, p. 2)—violates fairness principles, especially given her concealment and duress during PMA execution even as Husband disclosed complete financial information throughout the marriage. (Docket #146, ¶42).
43. Immediate orders on discovery are essential to uncover whether Wife's financial records explain her aggressive tactics, and in turn, to protect the children and ensure justice after a year of obstruction.
44. Failing to provide the order on discovery now allows Wife to push her baseless retaliation motions without providing Husband of the discovery needed to prove his primary objections to these motions. (Docket #92, 172).
45. Wife was offered an agreement to void the PMA in exchange for waiving the discovery objections. What's concerning is that she declined even though she would almost certainly get a large sum of money, so long as she's telling the truth about disclosing all financial information. (Docket#90, transcript of December 19, 2024 status conference p.7, L12-20).
46. So, either 1) Wife is hiding marital assets, or 2) assuming she's remained forthcoming and has nothing to hide, she is forcing the parties into all of this litigation, fighting against transparency for some illogical and illusive motive – the only way to explain Wife's position if one were to believe that she's not concealing marital assets is that she is fighting transparency because she wants less money and really enjoys this contentious litigation, and harassment of Husband.

47. The bias in Judge Ayers' handling is overwhelming considering the lack of any good faith objection to this discovery even before the motion to void the PMA was filed, let alone the absurdity of Judge Ayers continuing to delay the core issue after the PMA was formally placed at issue. (Docket 183, 192, Page 7, lines 10-20, Page 191, lines 10-20, 15-25: Page 192, lines 1-5).

48. This Court must act to protect the family from further harm and to restore some hope that justice can prevail in the 13th Circuit.

IV. JUDICIAL BIAS AND COORDINATED EFFORTS TO OBSTRUCT DISCOVERY TO THE OBVIOUS DETRIMENT OF HUSBAND AND THE CHILDREN:

49. Emergency relief under these facts is imperative for the fair administration of justice due to the ongoing obstruction of discovery and the court's bias and facilitation of concealment in favor of Wife and her attorney, Mr. Davis, and specifically against Husband.

50. This bias and systemic corruption have manifested in a series of actions by Judge Ayers, directly contrary to core Florida family law principles such as transparency and fairness, that have consistently undermined the Husband's due process rights and supported the Wife's efforts to conceal critical financial information.

51. One critical example is Judge Ayers refusal to address Husband's argument under Florida Rule of Family Law Procedure, 12.380(b)2(C), which requires assessment of the many discovery and ethical violations.

52. Given the lack of consequences for their misconduct, Wife and Mr. Davis are escalating their contempt for the law and ethical rules given developments described above.

53. The severity of the noncompliance, other delay tactics, and the likelihood that allowing some subpoenas to go out (or at least the Chase one for now) would benefit the parties, justify further action under Rule 12.380 in this situation. Specifically, Rule 12.380 provides broad discretion for sanctions under (b)2(C) states that the Court may, "An order refusing to allow the disobedient party to support or oppose designated claims or defenses, or prohibiting that party from introducing designated matters in evidence." 27. Given the failure to comply with the Court order and Wife's apparent objectives with the delay and obstruction tactics, an order granting Husband's request for a subpoena is appropriate.

54. The Court's inappropriate actions, which Husband cannot fully describe in this motion, have delayed resolution and emboldened Wife and Mr. Davis to escalate their retaliatory tactics, causing significant harm to Husband and the children.

V. CONCLUSION:

55. Wife's vulgar text to Husband, "Fuck you" (at p. 20 below), responding to an inquiry on time with the children) goes beyond poor manners; it reflects her broader refusal to cooperate and her readiness to exploit the litigation process to harm Husband

56. By choosing hostility over substantive engagement, she prolongs the case, intensifying the emotional and financial toll on the family. This is especially troubling given the stakes for the children's well-being, a concern Husband has repeatedly raised. (Docket 22, 72, 90, 109, 118, 134, 146, 152, 155, 158, 183, 192, and 198).

57. Judge Ayers inexplicably biased conduct provided cover and facilitation for their dishonest and unethical schemes, resulting in ongoing escalations of conflict, expense, and damage to the children. (id.)

58. Emergency relief is appropriate under Florida Family Law Rule of Procedure 12.605 when a party's conduct threatens immediate and irreparable harm, such as to a child's emotional stability or a litigant's due process rights.

59. Husband's due process rights are violated through the Court's ongoing refusal to force Mr. Davis to account for his ongoing and escalating misconduct and provide reasonable discovery that forms the basis for Husband's arguments on the GAL hearing set for August 8, 2025.

60. Furthermore, the permanent harm from Wife's and Mr. Davis's ongoing escalation of this conflict justifies the immediate relief Husband seeks.

61. Judge Ayers's disqualification removes prior judicial bias, placing a duty on Judge Felix to swiftly address Wife's increasingly volatile behavior, Mr. Davis's severe discovery violations, and the injustices under Judge Ayers.

62. Husband respectfully requests that this Court address these concerns immediately so the family can avoid more permanent damage from the escalating conflict and volatility described above.

63. Given the depths to which Wife and Mr. Davis are willing to sink in their concealment efforts, as demonstrated by recent events, the only reasonable judicial action at this point is to allow what Husband has requested for over a year, simple reciprocal discovery, so the parties can finally move on to resolution of issues rather than more of the dangerous escalations in conflict from Wife and Mr. Davis.

VI. REQUEST FOR RELIEF

64. WHEREFORE, Husband requests that this Court issue:

A) An immediate order overruling Wife's discovery objections holding that Husband is entitled to discovery including the Chase subpoenas under Florida law (Casto v. Casto, 508 So. 2d 330),

B) An immediate order overruling Wife's objections to any materials sought in Husband's request for produce 1, 2, and 3 with findings of fact regarding discovery violations,

C) An immediate order awarding fees, costs and other appropriate sanctions against Wife and her attorney under Florida Rule of Civil Procedure 1.380 for repeated discovery violations, including to compensate Husband for legal work fighting against the ongoing gross misconduct.

D) A Production Order: Compelling Wife to produce all outstanding discovery within 10 days
