

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE THIRTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT IN AND FOR HILLSBOROUGH COUNTY, FLORIDA

SARAH HANSON, Petitioner,

CHRISTOPHER HANSON, Respondent.

CASE NO.: 24-DR-1150 | DIVISION: D

RESPONDENT'S EMERGENCY MOTION FOR JUDICIAL REVIEW OF APRIL 4, 2025 HEARING VIDEO AND OTHER RELEVANT RECORDS FOR INCORPORATION INTO THE RECORD AND CONSIDERATION IN RELATION TO PENDING MOTIONS SET FOR APRIL 17, 2026 HEARING

The Respondent, CHRISTOPHER HANSON, appearing as attorney on his own behalf, respectfully moves this Court to review the video of the April 4, 2025 proceedings, and provide a report in advance of the April 17, 2026 hearing. This review should specifically encompass: (1) Judge Ayers's conduct, including any eye rolls or other displays of bias as captured during the April 4, 2025 hearing (Transcript of 4/4/2025 hearing, filed 6/3/2025, pp. 74-75); (2) the emails the 13th Circuit has continued to conceal regarding the December 13th, 2024, and January 9th, 2025 hearings, (3) the communications regarding the Court's request for a summary of Wife's testimony supporting the Guardian Ad Litem (GAL) issue following the April 4, 2025 hearing; (4) Wife's Counsel's initial agreement to draft the summary followed by his subsequent refusal; and (5) Judge Ayers's ultimate, unprompted excusal of Mr. Davis from her own directive over Husband's objection (Transcript of 4/22/2025 hearing, filed 5/15/2025, pp. 52-53). In support thereof, Husband states:

I. Discovery Obstruction, Bias, and the Illusion of a Custody Dispute

1. From his initial filings in May 2024, Husband has maintained a singular, consistent objective: obtaining basic financial discovery regarding marital assets Wife is known to have concealed in an account preventing Husband access. Husband has consistently requested the Court's intervention (under both Ayers and Felix) on this discovery issue to limit precisely the concerns that have now materialized—the weaponization of the children, prolonged, unnecessary conflict, and financial problems that threaten the family's security.
2. The Petitioner's strategy of "delay, obstruct, and conceal" is forensically established by their absolute refusal to participate in the discovery process. To date, Wife and Mr. Davis have failed to comply with fundamental mandatory disclosure requirements, while simultaneously lodging blanket objections to every financial subpoena Husband has issued. Demonstrating the bad-faith nature of this blockade, opposing counsel and Wife have failed to produce any response to any of the four requests to produce long past due. Wife has even refused to issue a response or objection to Husband's Third Request for Production—which simply sought non-objectionable legal billing information. This is not a discovery dispute; it is a unilateral discovery blackout designed to conceal marital assets.
3. The bias in favor of petitioner and Mr. Davis and specifically against husband and his due process rights was evident from the December 13th, 2024 hearing on Miss Hodz's completely unjustified withdrawal. The fact that the court continues to actively conceal communications related to those events is further evidence of the need for their consideration in connection with hearing any additional disputes in this matter, especially the guardian ad litem.

4. Despite a year and a half of the husband telling the same consistent story and petitioners and Mr. Davis' actions continuing to demonstrate their bad faith and concealment motives, Counsel for Petitioner continues to enjoy the Court's protection. He has never reduced his arguments in favor of a GAL to writing, nor has he alleged any genuine, fact-based concerns regarding the children's development, safety, or overall wellbeing.
5. The existing GAL motion, filed by Mr. Davis on December 13, 2024, was timed perfectly to coincide with the withdrawal of Husband's counsel on one day's notice, operating as a retaliatory lawfare tactic rather than a genuine child welfare concern. There has been no identifiable change in the children's circumstances that would justify the state-sanctioned interference of a GAL into their lives.
6. The children have excelled despite the litigation "punishment" they have endured. Introducing a GAL at this late stage, absent any evidence of harm or concern for their welfare, would be an unprecedentedly cruel and unnecessary disruption to their development.

II. Forensic Proof of Child Weaponization

7. The fact that the GAL motion is a manufactured litigation tactic designed to distract from the financial concealment is conclusively proven by Mr. Davis's active suppression of objective evidence regarding the children's well-being and Husband's capabilities as a father.
8. In an email to Mr. Davis on June 17, 2025, Husband specifically addressed this contradiction under the heading 'Children's School Records/Wellness forms'. Husband pointed out that both parties agree Cambridge Christian is an excellent school with teachers who know the children very well, asking Mr. Davis: "Why do you continue to suppress the kids' teachers offering information thru wellness questionnaires while you insist on involving strangers?"
9. Husband then issued a formal demand for Mr. Davis to agree to the joint request for wellness forms by June 20, 2025, or provide grounds for blocking it. Mr. Davis refused.
10. Mr. Davis again chose to remain silent and hide behind the court's continuing Bias and misconduct that shields him from accountability for his own misconduct.
11. The table below demonstrates that Davis and Petitioner's bad faith in the litigation for the last two years:

The "Process as Punishment:" Weaponization of Children

Event / Conduct	The "Good Faith" Illusion (Why it makes no sense if Wife/Davis have genuine welfare concerns)	The "Concealment" Reality (Why it makes perfect sense under the retaliation theory)

Refusal of Voluntary Medical Releases:

Husband repeatedly offered to sign medical releases and assist in procuring his own medical/psychiatric records. Davis ignored the offers and sought zero medical discovery.

An attorney prosecuting a genuine psychological risk to children would immediately subpoena treating physicians to build an objective evidentiary case for the Court. Ignoring free, undisputed access to the opposing party's medical records is malpractice in a genuine custody dispute.

Davis knows the medical records will conclusively prove Husband is compliant with treatment, stable, and mentally fit. He cannot afford to introduce objective medical truth into the record, as it instantly destroys the fabricated narrative he needs to maintain his leverage.

Refusal to Depose the Accused Parent:

Despite filing four aggressive motions attacking Husband's mental state, Davis never scheduled or took Husband's deposition, even when Husband explicitly asked, "do you want my deposition?".

In a custody dispute involving allegations of erratic or unstable behavior, deposing the accused parent is "Litigation 101." A good-faith attorney would use the deposition to lock in testimony, expose the alleged instability on the record, and secure admissions for trial.

A deposition would allow Husband to calmly, rationally, and officially dismantle Wife's claims under oath. Davis avoids the deposition to subvert the truth and the absurdity of GAL/Psych motions.

Rejection of Voluntary Evaluations:

Husband explicitly offered to voluntarily attend the psychological and vocational evaluations to appease Wife's concerns and bypass the need to bring the children into the conflict.

If the actual goal is to ensure the Husband is psychologically evaluated for the safety of the children, opposing counsel would eagerly accept a voluntary agreement to undergo the evaluations immediately, saving time, money, and judicial resources.

The goal is not the evaluation; the goal is the litigation of the evaluation. Accepting a voluntary evaluation ends the conflict. Forcing a contested hearing maximizes the emotional and financial burden on Husband, achieving the true objective: retaliatory leverage.

The "Blind" GAL Push vs. Teacher Wellness Forms

Davis pushed aggressively for a state-appointed GAL but actively fought Husband's attempt to have the children's Cambridge Christian teachers fill out joint wellness questionnaires.

Parents concerned about immediate child welfare want immediate answers from the trusted adults who observe the children five days a week. Opposing objective reports from the children's actual educators contradicts any claim of prioritizing their well-being.

The teachers will provide immediate, objective proof that the children are thriving and unaffected. A GAL, however, introduces a protracted, expensive, state-sponsored disruption that takes months. Davis chose the weapon of disruption over the truth of the teachers.

The "Litigation as Investigation"

Admission When asked in deposition what she had done to investigate her concerns before filing the motions, Wife admitted she did nothing to gather evidence, stating: "That's how you investigate it is you file the motions and you have people appointed".

A parent with genuine, urgent concerns does not wait for a court to appoint a stranger months later; they actively look for signs of distress in school, medical, or behavioral records immediately.

Wife's admission proves they filed the motions completely blind, with zero foundational evidence. They are using the Court's process not to resolve a known emergency, but to manufacture an invasive expedition to distract Husband from his financial discovery.

*Zero Follow-Up Discovery on the "Emergency"Despite filing four "emergency" custody/welfare motions on Dec 13, 2024, Davis issued zero interrogatories, subpoenas, or requests for production related to Husband's parenting, health, or the children's welfare in the subsequent months.

A lawyer prosecuting a child endangerment or custody modification claim must conduct discovery to meet their evidentiary burden at trial. Filing extreme motions and then doing absolutely no work to prove them is procedurally absurd.

Davis knows he has no evidentiary burden to meet because He knows that he enjoys the insider protectionism and systemic corruption in the 13th Circuit that's dominated these proceedings since day one. It's about maximum harassment and concealment.

12. Mr. Davis's complete refusal to accept Husband's medical releases, depose the Husband, or permit teacher wellness forms operates as a tacit admission. Opposing counsel does not want the truth about Husband's ability as a father or the children's welfare; opposing counsel only wants the pending threat of the motions to remain unresolved on the docket to serve as leverage.

III. The April 4th Hearing: Judicial Bias and Expanding Judicial Misconduct as Part of Active Cover Up Attempts

13. The obvious misconduct and the 13th Circuit's coordinated efforts to conceal it are readily observable throughout the record including in relation to their concealment of the April 4, 2024 hearing despite Judge Ayers personally inserting it into the litigation in a manner central to the transfer of venue issue on appeal.
14. During the April 4, 2025 hearing, Judge Ayers displayed overt, non-verbal hostility toward Husband, rolling her eyes in response to his arguments. When Husband confronted Judge Ayers on the record regarding this bias, she explicitly denied it (Transcript of 4/4/2025 hearing, filed 6/3/2025, p. 74, lines 7–9). Judge Ayers offered sua sponte to check the video regarding her own conduct, yet the 13th Circuit continues efforts to permanently conceal this objective evidence of judicial hostility.
15. Furthermore, the video and audio record will demonstrate the Court's shocking deference to Mr. Davis's guardian ad litem motion to inflict maximum damage and harassment on Husband. Following the April 4, 2025 hearing, Judge Ayers explicitly directed Mr. Davis via email on April 7, 2025, to submit a written summary of Wife's testimony. Mr. Davis simply ignored the Court's directive.
16. When Husband filed a motion to strike due to this non-compliance, Judge Ayers reversed course from her own request—deferring to Davis and his refusal to draft the summary.
17. The Court refused to hold Mr. Davis accountable. Instead, during the subsequent April 22, 2025 hearing, Judge Ayers provided Mr. Davis's defense for him, inexplicably stating on the record: "It's probably better that Mr. Davis do not send me his summary because I'm going to cut and paste and use it... [and] anything I used from him you would have thought I was siding with him" (Transcript of 4/22/2025 hearing, filed 5/15/2025, p. 52, lines 19–25; p. 53, lines 1–3).
18. The necessity of this review is amplified by the severe structural conflict currently presiding over this case. Judge Felix is currently an active, named defendant in Husband's related Mandamus and Public Records lawsuit (Case No. 25-CA-010255). That lawsuit stems directly from the 13th Circuit's intentional concealment of records related to the exact systemic misconduct and due process violations described herein.
19. This structural conflict has already manifested into active prejudice. During the February 3, 2026 Case Management Conference and subsequent scheduling discussions, Judge Felix demonstrated shocking deference to opposing counsel, effectively granting Mr. Davis a "veto" over the Court's calendar.

IV. Active Prejudice towards Husband and Active Deference in favor of Wife and Davis:

20. Judge Felix specifically asked Mr. Davis for permission to manage the docket, inquiring "if it was ok if we heard the discovery issue before the Guardian ad Litem issue" [Docket #69, p. 4, ¶ 28].
 21. When Mr. Davis—the attorney actively orchestrating the "delay, harass, obstruct, and conceal" strategy—instructed the Court to delay the foundational discovery issues further, Judge Felix simply agreed [Docket #69, p. 4, ¶ 29].
 22. Abdicating judicial authority to the attorney engaged in a nearly 2 year pattern of misconduct to conceal records is exactly the type of self-serving judicial misconduct that due process and the relevant Federal Case Law on Structural Conflicts, prevent.
 23. In other words, the Court continues to act out the bias and insider protectionism which allows Davis and his misconduct to commit continuing ethical violations and cause additional harm, all completely unchecked by this Court.
 24. These facts provide a perfect demonstration of why this structural conflict requires non-discretionary review and disqualification [Docket #69, p. 5, ¶ 30].
- IV. The Necessity of Video Review by the Successor Judge
25. Because current Judge Felix was not the presiding judge during the foundational discovery hearings where these lawfare tactics originated, a review of the video record is essential to understand the true context and structural corruption of this case.
 26. A successor judge cannot blindly adopt the tainted priorities of a disqualified predecessor. Pursuant to the Court's directive, an eight-hour hearing is scheduled for April 17, 2026. Judge Felix cannot ignore the severe, documented concerns regarding bias and corruption while proceeding towards this hearing.
 27. Furthermore, Judge Felix has demonstrated a willful blindness to the structural conflict inherent in his assignment, explicitly ignoring extensive, well-established federal case law mandating disqualification under the precise facts of this case. When confronted with binding United States Supreme Court precedent requiring an impartial tribunal (In re Murchison, 349 U.S. 133 (1955) and Caperton v. A.T. Massey Coal Co., 556 U.S. 868 (2009)), Judge Felix offered no explanation for his refusal to follow federal due process mandates.
 28. Instead, he relied exclusively on state authority as a procedural loophole regarding "successive" disqualifications to avoid addressing the undeniable constitutional conflict of presiding over a litigant's family law case while simultaneously being sued by that same litigant for constitutional violations in a related Mandamus action.
 29. When Husband filed a Motion for Rehearing explicitly highlighting the Court's failure to address this federal case law, Judge Felix issued a blanket denial without offering any legal or factual justification for ignoring the constitutional due process conflict.
 30. As Husband continues his efforts to protect his due process rights and obtain the video personally, it's imperative that Judge Felix review part 1 of the Guardian ad Litem fraud on the judicial system, before part 2 at the April 17, 2026 hearing.

V. Appellate Preservation and the Structural Conflict of the Successor Judge

31. This motion is filed not only to seek immediate relief but to preserve the record for appellate and federal review. The Second District Court of Appeal recently denied Husband's motion to supplement the record in his pending venue appeal (Case No. 2D2025-1936).

32. The necessity of this review is amplified by the severe structural conflict currently presiding over this case. Judge Felix is currently an active, named defendant in Husband's related Mandamus and Public Records lawsuit (Case No. 25-CA-10255). That lawsuit stems directly from the 13th Circuit's intentional concealment of records related to the exact systemic misconduct and due process violations Husband is asking the Court to review today.
33. On January 8, 2026, Judge Felix entered an order denying Husband's motion to disqualify him, completely failing to address the constitutional due process problem of a judge presiding over a case while actively being sued by the litigant for constitutional violations arising from the same underlying dispute.
34. Refusing to review the video evidence of his predecessor's bias—while simultaneously defending against a lawsuit accusing him and his employer of concealing evidence of that exact bias—would create an irreconcilable appearance of impropriety.
35. It's imperative in order to assess the Guardian ad Litem, that one review the April 4th video record to understand the fraudulent, retaliatory foundation upon which those motions were designed and pursued.
36. Husband attended a hearing on the petition for writ of mandamus case on April 10, 2026.
37. Judge Coleman continues in efforts to aid the 13th Circuit conceal from public access, evidence relevant to the issues before this Court.
38. To continue with hearing the guardian ad litem issue after over a year of concealing this critical video evidence from the hearing on these same issues would be a massive miscarriage of justice further endangering the welfare of this family.

VI. Conclusion:

39. The record in this matter presents various patterns of conduct from the Petitioner, her counsel, and the administrative actors within the 13th Circuit, that are in direct contradiction with any good faith approach to the litigation.
40. The Court has sought to ignore these inconsistencies as is an active participant in this misconduct.
41. The due process violations already committed in this case are so extensive and severe that many in the 13th Circuit must attempt to continue the concealment to avoid significant consequences.
42. The "Logic Trap" is the only lens through which the Court can accurately view the timeline of this case. The refusal to produce mandatory disclosures for two years, the surgical "12-month" carve-out in the Certificates of Compliance (after an intentional 4 month delay on the opposing litigant's core objective), the "ugly and expensive" threats issued to successor counsel, and the document dumping by the Circuit Administration are not isolated procedural anomalies. They are the structural components of a conspiracy to violate Husband's due process rights at a minimum, and likely more.
43. Due process and the integrity of the Thirteenth Judicial Circuit demand that the Court stop addressing the "branches" of this dispute (the retaliatory motions) and finally address the "root" (the discovery fraud). The requested judicial review of the video and the suppressed communications is a poor substitute for production, but it's better than allowing the 13th Circuit to continue concealing even whether anyone has viewed the video.

44. To rule without this review is to participate in the "Silence as Admission" pattern that has characterized this case.

VERIFICATION

Under penalties of perjury, I, CHRISTOPHER HANSON, declare that I have read the foregoing Respondent's Motion for Judicial Review of April 4, 2025 Hearing Video and Other Relevant Records for Incorporation into the Record and Consideration in Relation to Pending Motions Set for April 17, 2026 Hearing, and that the facts stated in it are true.
